ACCESS LONDON THEATRE

Welcome to the winter 2012 edition of Access London Theatre, compiled and published by the Society of London Theatre.

What you will find inside

The 18th edition of the Access London Theatre brochure lists over 110 audio-described, captioned and signed performances taking place in London theatres between January and April 2012, making those winter months just a little bit easier to bear! There's everything from hit West End musicals to comedies at fringe venues and classic dramas in London's most famous playhouses.

You'll also find our Venue Access Guide in the middle section of the brochure. This table provides essential access information for over 70 theatres, many of which have assisted performances listed in this publication. As well as useful phone and email contacts, there is also vital information for wheelchair users, details of the number of steps to gain access to each section of the theatre, location of disabled toilets and much more.

You can also download the Access Venue Guide as a printable PDF at www.officiallondontheatre.co.uk/access/venue

FREE Access Bulletin

Official London Theatre sends a monthly Access Bulletin via email packed with theatre news and just announced assisted performances. It's a great way to keep up-to-date with the latest access information and find out about events going on in the coming weeks.

To register to receive the bulletin, visit www.officiallondontheatre.co.uk/register

The Society of London Theatre joins forces with Direct Enquiries

The Society of London Theatre has been working with Direct Enquiries, the UK's leading access and disability consultancy firm, to help compile the most detailed venue access information for London's theatres, with everything from which seats offer the most leg room to where the nearest accessible drop off points are.

Visit www.officiallondontheatre.co.uk/access/venue for a link to the brand new website. You can also visit Direct Enquiries Inclusive London website at www.inclusivelondon.com for venue information for attractions and facilities across the capital.

Talking Notes®

If you are planning on attending a show at the London Coliseum, Talking Notes® ensures you don't miss out on anything. The company offers an audio-introduction for each performance, including a plot synopsis and vivid descriptions of the set, costumes and characters. For further details, call 0871 472 0800. The Royal Opera House offers a similar service called Audio-Introductions. To find out more call 020 7304 4000 to speak to an Access Officer.

Forthcoming assisted performances at the Unicorn theatre

The Unicorn theatre has an extensive and exciting programme of accessible performances as part of its spring 2012 season which will shortly be announced. There will be audio-described, captioned, sign language interpreted, autism friendly and relaxed performances. Please check www.unicorntheatre.com for details.

How to book

Make sure you follow our tips below when booking an assisted performance:

- Assisted performances are extremely popular so book as early as possible to avoid disappointment.
- Make sure you let the theatre know you are booking specifically for the assisted performance. This will ensure you are seated in the correct part of the theatre and that they also offer you the correct rate as many theatres offer special access rates.
- For information on each theatre's venue access information, refer to our Venue Access Guide in the middle of this brochure, or visit our brand new Direct Enquiries website at www.officiallondontheatre.co.uk/access/venue. Remember to let the theatre know if you have any access needs when you book.
- Don't forget, you might have to pay a booking fee on top of the ticket price.

I hope you find this brochure useful and enjoy many nights out at the theatre this winter.

HOW DOES IT WORK?

Audio Description is the means whereby blind or partially sighted audiences can experience theatre; it is a live verbal commentary providing information on the visual elements of a production as it unfolds. It describes action that is essential to the understanding of the story, as well as other visual information such as the style and design, sets, costumes, facial expressions and visual jokes that might otherwise be missed. The description is delivered around the dialogue of a performance and patrons listen to it through a discreet headset.

Captioning is similar to subtitling and gives deaf, deafened and hard of hearing people access to dramas, comedies and musicals. At a captioned performance the words are displayed on a screen (or screens), placed near the stage or in the set and can be seen at the same time as they are spoken or sung. Speakers' names, sound effects and offstage noises are also shown. A trained captioner prepares the script in advance so as to mirror the rhythm and flow of the performance, then operates the captions as the action happens on stage.

Captioning is also helpful for theatre-goers whose first language is not English, anyone who has difficulty following strong accents and students who are studying the text of a play.

Sign Language Interpreted Performances are a regular feature of London theatre in drama, musicals and childrens' theatre, offering a wide variety of choices to deaf and hard-of-hearing theatre-goers. An interpreter will stand in a clearly visible position and interpret the spoken and heard aspects of the show.
